SET TO SHINE

Topaz, diamonds, citrine and pearls. These are just some of the gemstones Stacey Whale uses to make vibrant pieces of jewellery for men and women in her new workshop at Upper Moutere's Old Post Office.

She describes her pieces as modern classics that entice you to take a closer look. Fascinated by magnification and the architectural detail of natural forms when viewed through a microscope, Stacey creates rings, earrings and pendants using loose gems set in fragments of gold, cupped beneath a sapphire lens to appear as if floating in water.

Other pieces use spherical stones resembling bright, clear raindrops suspended in precious metal settings. Native New Zealand plants are another source of inspiration for her jewellery, with flower pods in silver or gold clasping colourful centres of peridot, labradorite and blue diamonds.

Her unique collections and innovative stone setting techniques won Stacey four major awards during time spent in the UK with husband Craig, who's a builder. "We went to London in 2001 on a two-year working holiday and stayed for nearly 10 years," she says.

Using jewellery design skills learned through studying art and craft design at Whitireia New Zealand, Stacey began the first chapter of her jewellery career in 2005, initially working out of a studio in an old church and later at Cockpit Arts in Holborn, an 'incubator' for emerging artists close to the famous jewellery hub of Hatton Garden.

It was a heady time, she says, with thousands of visitors coming through the studio at twice-yearly public openings and her jewellery designs selling through exhibitions and galleries and attracting international attention.

The couple's return to their hometown of Wellington in 2010 coincided with the arrival of the first of their two boys, now 7 and 10. Then, two years ago, they decided to make the move to the South Island in search of the rural lifestyle and a whole new family adventure.

Stacey's workshop opened just a few weeks ago, and she is excited to be working in this bright, colourful space to extend her existing collections and develop new ideas. Using transparently sourced yellow gold and sterling silver, oxidised silver and plated black gold, she'll also be working at her jewellery bench to make pieces to commission.

With her artistic eye taking in the intricacies of the local landscape that Stacey and her family now call home, it will be fascinating to see where her imagination takes her next.

The Grapevine says.....

It's November already and you probably knew that just by how often you're having to mow the lawn. If you're a bit over doing them yourself have a browse through this issue and you'll find several businesses who'll do it for you. Might be quite nice to give yourself a break and just think, you'll be helping to keep a small local business up and running.

The Sarau Festival is once again looking for volunteers and if you haven't helped out yet, why not step up and volunteer, it might be one of the best ways to take part in this annual fundraiser.

Great to see there's a new business out there that can get you from A to B. Mapua Willing Wheels are set up and ready to go, they cover a wide area and will be useful for all ages. If services like this one are going to survive they need support so see if it's something that might work for you and your family.

Now that you've got someone else mowing the lawns, you'll have some time up your sleeve...pop up to Gravity winery, browse the gallery, grab a glass of wine and enjoy a platter made with local products that are up there with the best of them. What a great way to enjoy being part of a fabulous community.

Local Winery Opens Doors to Local Artists

Local artists from the top of the South Island now have a new space to show their work, thanks to a blossoming partnership with a community -focused wine company.

Gravity Gallery, located at the Gravity Winery in Mahana, has been specially created for local artists, who work in rotation to occupy the space and exhibit their work.

The Nelson region is rich in creative talent and the team at Gravity are intent on showcasing everything it has to offer. In the future they hope to also host artisan markets, giving locals another opportunity to share their produce.

Gravity is part of Kiwi owned Booster Wine Group. Director, Allan Yeo, says a dedicated space for artists was just one way the company was able to get involved and support the local community.

"For us, it's not new to support local, it's always been about supporting local. Like many of New Zealand's special sites, Gravity could have been lost to foreign ownership. We've kept it in New Zealand hands, and we want this place to be a community asset and a focal point for both locals and visitors to the region.

"It's a small start to something we hope can grow," said Yeo. "Our ethos is one of partnership. When we work together, we create opportunities for everyone to benefit."

WHAT'S BEEN HAPPENING.... Macpac Fund Recipient & Award Finalist

We're very excited to be the recipients of the Macpac Fund for Good, which means we will be able to upgrade some of our specialist outdoors gear. An important part of what we do at WIO is removing barriers to accessing the outdoors. Providing good equipment and gear is a big part of that – so thanks Macpac! We are proud to have been named as a finalist in the Sustainable Business Awards, which is truly an acknowledgement of our partners, funders & the community who supports us. We love working together with the amazing schools and community groups in our region to have a positive impact in building a sustainable community & environment, so thank you!

WHAT'S COMING UP.... Can Your Business Support Local Youth?

We are currently developing opportunities to further promote work readiness in our youth and establish pathways into local employment. WIO will work with youth to develop their essential employability skills and connect them with local employers offering work placements and/or training. The Motueka Vocational Pathways Programme will be running in November and we are looking for businesses to be involved. If you are a local business or employer who would be interested in supporting such initiatives through work placements, training or future employment opportunities, please get in touch! We'd love to hear from you: info@wio.org.nz. There will be more information at the Pop Up Employment & Training Expo at Motueka Public Library on Thurs 15 October, 10am – 4pm - a chance to connect with Work Brokers, Training Providers & Employers. For event info call Janine, 03 543 7240.

FOCUS ON.... Making a Difference

The Ignite Programme is a great example of how one person can look to make a difference in their community. This 3 year programme has been established in a local high school after it was noted by the sponsor that there weren't as many boys on stage receiving awards. How come? What could be done about it? From initial discussions, the Ignite youth development programme was created to provide a positive stimulus in the crucial mid-teen years, designed to encourage a step-up in skills, leadership and personal development. The lasting benefits for these tama will be felt in the school, whānau and community. You can see photos from their latest adventures on our Facebook Page: facebook.com/WhenuaItiOutdoors/

OUTDOOR WANDERINGS.... The Riuwaka Resurgence

Getting outside is such an integral part of our wellbeing, and with Mental Health Awareness Week having just been, this month is a reminder to head outside for a walk with your whānau or friends, fill your lungs with fresh air, take time to notice the spring changes around you and appreciate where we live! Our pick would be a picnic and stroll at the Riuwaka Resurgence, where the healing waters of Te Puna ō Riuwaka, a sacred place for local Māori, provides the perfect place for both spiritual and physical nourishment.

New gear is on it's way - thanks Macpac!

News from Mapua Bowls Club

The wonderful Opening Day in September promised months of good bowling ahead. Little did we know of the drama that was about to befall that would shut the Club and demand patience and understanding from club members.

Less than a week after Opening Day a tap on an external wall abutting the domain was accidentally or deliberately broken. This resulted in a broken internal pipe and water in freefall. The flood and damage could have been so much worse if three of our members hadn't been passing by chance and were able to take immediate action. A very disappointing start to the season as we wait for new vinyl floor coverings, new skirting boards, new cupboards and repairs to the carpet. Unfortunately some historic documents were beyond salvage.

Insurance cover came to the rescue, apart from the excess that needed to be paid. However, the Sprig and Fern kindly offered the Club a quiz night slot and a very successful evening on Wednesday 7th October helped to redress the balance.

Order is nearly restored and the Club is open again for bowling. Now it is the turn of the rain to keep us indoors but we are an optimistic bunch and will soon be outside again on roll-up days, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. The popular 3/5 format, often seen televised, is being played on Friday evenings and I'm very pleased to announce the re-opening of Leisure Bowls on Monday evenings. This is a lot of fun and open to anyone who would like to come along and have a go. Snacks and drinks are available as are sets of bowls that can be borrowed.

LEISURE BOWLS

EASY DO-ABLE GAMES AND ACTIVITIES TO HELP BUILD BEAUTIFUL RELATIONSHIPS

By Debbie Ball

Here are a few more ideas shared from my "Adventures in Natural Learning Handbook"

EYE FIND

When your child is busy in another room, hide a favourite little object somewhere in the room you're in. Ensure that a small piece of the item is visible. Call the child into the room and tell them to find the item only using their eyes – no hands!

TOE TOUCHING

Players lie down on grass, feet to feet. Try to roll along keeping toes touching all the time. Make a start and finish line. See if each time you can get a little faster.

NEWSPAPER GLIDE

Using one piece of newspaper per foot try to glide along in your socks, on the newspaper without losing it. Have a start and finish line. If the paper rips you need to continue with what you have left! Try this on different surfaces. If you try it with bare feet the paper might stick to your feet and you can run!

NAME THREE THINGS

Ask your child to name three things from these categories. If you have a few children you can call out a category and then toss a beanbag to someone to answer. It's also a great car game.

(Here are a few suggestions from the long list in the Handbook):

- things you wear on your head
- things you wear on your feet
- things that fly in the sky
- oceans
- places you'd like to go
- days of the week

- favourite games to play
- people you like
- foods you really don't like
- breeds of dog
- types of sea creatures

PLAY OFFICES

Collect old equipment or make telephones, computer keyboard, typewriter, pad and pencil, clipboards, shelves, envelopes. Some children delight in setting this up rather than playing and that's ok. Let them do whatever they prefer. Have a box for small items to be stored in so they can come out and be played with another day – or the child can initiate the game themselves.

Some children require "clients" to come into the office to make appointments, pay bills etc. Depending on the child's own personal recollection of an office you might need to expand their knowledge by adding your own personal recollections of times you have been in an office.

ALPHABET BOOK

Use an unlined exercise book, or "Project Book", and write one letter per page – upper case and lower case. Either draw a picture relevant to each letter, or cut out a picture (or pictures) from magazines to suit.

NUMBER BOOK

Same as above, but glue pictures on the page that represent the number you've written at the top of the page.

These books are fun if you're able to make them personal to the child with items they're interested in.

These ideas are not just for children – many adults enjoy them, and they're excellent for professional team-building sessions!

Since Glenys stepped down as our indomitable team leader, members of PANZ Nelson put their heads together to develop new systems and shared responsibilities to keep the group alive and kicking. And it is working well. The atmosphere on Tuesday mornings is the same as ever with plenty of ideas and mutual support being exchanged. The programme of activities beyond the routine painting session continues.

A number of members made the journey to Riwaka at the end of September to paint in the great outdoors. Glen had offered her new home on the estuary as a base and it provided plenty of inspiration to be creative; a far cry from the security of painting indoors using photographs. It was a very enjoyable day and a lot of thanks to Glen for the refreshments and use of her lovely house.

Tuesday 13 October, 'Big Picture' day. Sue had chosen 'The Pool of London' by André Derain as the secret painting. Marian had organised a photocopy and cut it into eighteen equal portions. So our happy punters had no idea what they were creating until all the sections were pasted together at the end of the morning. The original and the worthy effort are both attached and I hope you are struggling to differentiate! This is always a popular challenge and also a lot of fun for the organisers scanning art books to find a suitable painting.

RECIPE

Salads are on the menu again at Soo Gee's house, this one's good enough on it's own or have it with some of that delicious locally made ciabatta.

Asparagus and Watercress Salad with Sherry Dressing

2 bunches of asparagus trimmed, 100g blue cheese crumbled, ½ cup toasted walnuts or flaked almonds, 1 bunch of watercress leaves.

Cut asparagus into 3 and blanch in boiling water with a little salt added. Cook for two minutes or until just tender. Drain and cool. Wash watercress and pat dry or use one of those salad spinners. Combine all ingredients and drizzle with the following dressing and toss well.

Dressing: Mix together 3 tablespoons of quality olive oil or nut oil if you have it, 1 tablespoon sherry vinegar, salt and pepper to taste.

FEEDING FUSSING FELINES

Cat owners often find mealtimes a battle of wills. Many people tell us that their cats are fussy and they'll love a brand food for a few days then turn their noses up at it (usually straight after the purchase of a big bag!)

Below are some feeding tips if you have a fussy feline:

Use an activity feeder – rather than making it easy for your cat and simply plonking their food into a bowl, an activity feeder makes feeding time more interesting for your cat and can be either bought or homemade from toilet rolls and containers. Activity feeders also help reduce overconsumption and obesity.

Consider feeding your cat in several different places so they have to go looking for it. Scattering biscuits across a patio or garden (or if you can cope with it, even the kitchen floor!) means they have to find it and incidentally do some exercise!

Cats prefer to eat small amounts often rather than having set mealtimes as they have evolved to eat when they have hunted and caught prey. They expend energy from the hunt and then replace it by eating the prey. There is not much energy used in walking up to a bowl full of food!

Although your cat will tell you otherwise, they don't need a lot of different foods. They don't have a lot of variety out in the wild and only expect options because we provide them! A single main food (complete and balanced) with occasional small amounts of novel food items is all they need.

On the other end of the spectrum, rather than being fussy, we are seeing more and more obese cats in our clinic. Just like humans, this impacts on their health in many ways and often reduces their lifespan. Many people feed their cats to show them affection or to stop them yowling for food!

Instead of offering food, distract them with play – even older cats find it hard to resist a ball made out of tin foil or a feathery cat wand or a moving torch light. It only takes a few minutes and you can even sit on the couch while you play with them!

And did you know it is possible to teach cats tricks?

Cats are just as capable as dogs of learning but having an untrained cat around is not nearly as crazy and tiresome as an untrained dog so not many people think about training their cat. You can teach them useful stuff like getting into a cat carrier cage voluntarily or just fun stuff. Several of our staff have taught their cats to beg, roll over, play dead, fetch and high five. Super yummy food treats are the best training rewards. Pick a time when your cat is already in play mode and keep sessions really short, don't force your cat to be trained if it's not in the mood. Adding in these interactions not only makes life more interesting for your cat but strengthens your bond and improves your relationship. If you want a cat to hang out with you, play with it!

And on a completely different subject...orders and repeat prescriptions

It is very helpful for our staff and much more efficient for everyone if clients ring ahead for orders and prescriptions.

We can then get everything ready to go and you can pick up your goodies from our collection station without having to wait around.

This is even more important with Covid-19 still lurking around – we also have the QR code to scan and hand sanitiser at the door.

Thanks for your understanding.

To make this another fabulous Moutere event we need your help and support

The festival is entirely volunteer run and not for profit, and we get 5,000 or so coming to the festival each year - it's a lot of fun!

Please let us know if you would like to get involved in:

- Running the photographic competition and / or judging it

- Making food for the volunteers on the 3 days around the event
- Organising the entertainment
- Setting up Sat 30 Jan, packing down Mon 1 Feb
- Small jobs - there's plenty for everyone in the run up and on the Day

The money raised goes straight back into the Moutere community via The Sarau Community Trust. It supports a huge array of our sports, activities and community organisations, including our Moutere Hills Community Centre.

Please contact us at sarau@saraufestival.co.nz to let us know you'd like to be involved and kept up to date with our meetings
